

Website Term Project

For the project, you should create a website, complete with at least three webpages. Your page(s) should have the following features:

- Images
- External Links to other websites
- Navigation – This can be a mixture of an image map, a dropdown navigation menu, or a drop down menu. There should be internal navigation within a page and navigation to other pages in the site.
- A form that has at least two text fields, a drop down menu and a checkbox and/or radio button selection. The form will need to submit values to an email.
- At least one Javascript function, other than the scroll bar function, which changes the website or validates a form.
- An external stylesheet that provides a standard look to all of the pages in the site.

The deadline for the website has been changed to December 8th and there will be no presentation on November 25th. Stay tuned to hear what we will do on that day.

Marking:

The site will be marked on the inclusion of and the working condition of each of the features listed above. Inclusion of each of the features in the web site will be worth 6 points each. If a feature works flawlessly then it will be given 10 points. The overall presentation, style and creativity of the page is worth 10 points and a bonus 15 points will be rewarded for students who include a significant amount of extra work into the project. This extra work would include topics or techniques we did not cover or use of tools not covered in class. For instance, a working and creative JavaScript function or an insightful use of CSS that is different from what we did in class would be easy ways to gain these bonus marks. Therefore the breakdown of the marks is:

30 – for including the features

60 – for having features that work correctly

10 – for creativity, presentation, and style

Bonus 15 – for extra work

Examples of Websites:

1. Web site for a friend's music band.
2. Web site catalogue for a store
3. A movie review site

Academic Honesty:

Plagiarism and cheating are serious education offences in any teaching environment which may result in failure of the assignment. You may discuss your work with other students but the final work should be your own.
